Transporting your baby!

More than a few ways of transporting your baby!

Recently, I received a few items, all having to do with traveling with kids. Whether shopping, hiking, or flying, you'll find these products very practical.

Baby Sherpa Diaper Backpack

Baby Sherpa has thought about everything you would possibly need to carry with you for your baby and has made sure there is a spot for it in this backpack. It is a cooler, a diaper bag, a video bag and a personal bag all in one. There are two insulated compartments to keep bottles and other beverages cold. The video pouch is padded and floats in the bag so nothing should slam into that new expensive camcorder. The bag is very sturdy and is great for your back, because it has a padded waist, sternum and shoulder strap. It fits as carry on luggage for airlines and I can definitely see an active parent using this bag since you don't have to carry more than one. I personally like backpacks because they free both your hands, you don't have to worry about straps slipping off your shoulders while you are carrying your child or anything else for that matter. I can also see a parent using this bag for a simple trip to the mall. The backpack is easy to clean and water resistant and comes with a lifetime warranty. The instructions for the bag are very detailed and the company even provides tips on how to get the most out of their product.
